Odom speaks out for Louisiana farmers in Washington

Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Bob Odom was speaking out for Louisiana farmers in Washington, D.C., again as he traveled to the nation's capital for the mid-year meeting of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA).

"My goal every time I travel to Washington, or anytime I meet with key decision makers, is to bring attention to the situation in Louisiana. We cannot let the nation forget what has happened not only to our agricultural and forestry industries, but the state as a whole. No matter where you live, the hurricanes affected you," he said.

Odom and other members of NASDA are also focused on the upcoming 2007 Farm Bill legislation.

"The final version of the 2007 Farm Bill will determine the future of Southern agriculture. It is important that we stay involved in the process and all Farm Bill discussions to secure agriculture interests in the final version. Payments are a big part of the survival of our farms. The recent trend has been to put a lot of money into conservation programs, but they're only successful if there is farmland to conserve. When farmers go out of business, that land is sold in some lucrative deal with shopping center and condo developers. It's not put into a USDA conservation program," Odom said. "The bottom line is we have to keep farmers in business because we don't want to become a nation that depends on foreign interests for its food. If keeping farmers in business means maintaining payment programs, then that's what should be done."

"We have the least-expensive, most-abundant and safest food in the world; we do not need to compromise that by ending payment programs."

During the NASDA meeting, the commissioners agreed to hire a consultant to work on their behalf during Farm Bill discussions and negotiations.

"We're talking to someone who has Congressional experience and is very knowledgeable about past Farm Bill legislation," Odom said.

Also at the NASDA mid-year meeting, Odom and other commissioners met in committees, task forces and working groups to address issues facing the nation's agriculture producers. Odom currently serves on NASDA's Animal and Plant Industries, Rural Development and Financial Security, and Natural Resources and Pesticide Management committees. He also serves on the Biotechnology Task Force, the Warehouse Working Group and the Specialty Crop Task Force.

Did You Know:

March 17 is national Ag Day. It's a day to celebrate the abundant supply of food, fiber and other products agriculture contributes to this nation.

In Louisiana, there are many things you can do to mark the occasion of Ag Day.

Take your family out to dinner at a restaurant that serves Louisiana-grown, raised or produced foods. Visit a farmers market to purchase locally-grown produce. Go for a drive in the country and tell your children and/or grandchildren how important agriculture is to Louisiana and the United States. For a hands-on experience, gather your family together to plant a tree or spring vegetable garden. Or, visit the Department of Agriculture and Forestry's Web site, www.ldaf.state.la.us, to learn more about agriculture and forestry.

If you live in the northern part of the state, consider visiting Papa Simpson's Farm in Arcadia, www.papasimpsons-farm.com, for a fun and educational outing. In central Louisiana, a trip to 4B Ranch near Melder, www.4bduder-anch.com, or the Southern Forest Heritage Museum in Longleaf, www.forestheritage-museum.com, is a great way to spend Ag Day weekend.

For those in south Louisiana, the Atchafalaya Basin welcome center at Butte LaRose has a wealth of information about Louisiana's state tree, the bald-cypress. Finish the day with a crawfish or catfish dinner at one of Acadiana's many locally-owned seafood restaurants.

However you choose to celebrate Ag Day, remember to thank a farmer.
